

SSF Teachers Reject New Board Offer

CTA Members Picket Motel, Set Up 'Truth Wagons' As Strike Continues

By JANET PARKER
Picket lines continued to surround schools in the South San Francisco Unified School District today in the fifth day of a teachers' strike.

The district's teachers planned a noon rally for Orange Park today.

During the weekend, teachers rejected an offer by the Board of Trustees, calling it meaningless. Trustees said they would be willing to meet with the California Conciliation Service. However, they stipulated that the district's 666 teachers must be willing to return to work.

Teachers are seeking a seven per cent salary increase. The board has offered 1.9 per cent.

Teachers in the district are members of the Classroom Teachers Association (CTA) and National Education Association (NEA).

Teachers have already agreed to conciliation," said Jose Colmenares, California

Teachers Association representative.

The teachers are not going back to class until we reach a settlement," he said. We expect a fair salary settlement. We already have met and confer rights by law.

"We see their offer as meaningless and pure nonsense," the spokesman said.

It's a management strategy that's been tried all over the state.

Dave Shepherd, spokesman for the Paul N. Gage, said the offer was a fair one for conciliation and that the teachers "turned us down."

At a weekend press conference, Board President

Kenneth Austin said the district's previous offer of an across-the-board raise of $764 a year still stands.

District spokesman also said that all schools are in full operation today with qualified professional teachers. Buses are running on schedule.

However, Colmenares said he had no doubts that the many persons being used to supervise the classes are not credentialed teachers, but community persons hired for $50 per day.

He also said classroom supervisors are unable to control students and that the union is urging parents to keep their children at home.

There is no instruction going on at the schools," he said.

Marjorie Shotton, Classroom Teacher Association President, also said education is at a standstill.

Reports are coming in of disruptive classroom conditions and lack of supervision," she said.

Wife of Mayaguez Crewman Killed

Guillermo Reyes of Daly City had been reunited with his wife, Salvacion, for less than two weeks following his release from Cambodian captors who boarded the Mayaguez on May 12.

Sunday, Reyes, 54, was driving toward Stinson Beach in Marin County with several members of his family to celebrate his release at a picnic.

His son, Wilfredo, who had been with him when Cambodians captured the Mayaguez and held the crew for two days until Marines freed them, was following in another car along Highway One.

About a mile from their destination, Reyes' car went off the road and plunged down a 300-foot cliff.

Mrs. Reyes, 49, was fatally injured. She was pronounced dead on arrival at a nearby hospital about 1.45 p.m.

Reyes suffered a broken neck and possible internal injuries, it was learned.

Two of the Reyes' children riding in the car — Janine, 16, and Cratrina, 13 — received less severe injuries, along with a passenger, Jackie Bostus, 39.

All were hospitalized in Marin General Hospital.

Mrs. Reyes received honors last year from San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto for her contributions toward goodwill projects.

A photo of her and Mayor Alioto occupies a prominent place in her home at 34 Garibaldi St., Daly City.

Throughout the ordeal of the Mayaguez incident, Mrs. Reyes said she prayed for her son and husband would not be harmed and would soon be released so they could be reunited.

The father and son were freed along with 37 other crewmen of the vessel when U.S. Marines assaulted the island of Koh Tang where it was thought the crew was being held, while other Marines boarded the Mayaguez on the high seas.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Mrs. Salvacion Reyes, 49, wife of Guillermo Reyes, 54, right, of Daly City, was killed when a car driven by her husband ran off a highway and plunged 300 feet down a cliff, the California Highway Patrol reported. Reyes is one of 39 crewmen held captive by the Cambodian government and freed by U.S. military intervention.

Mrs. Reyes waited by the phone with her family for word of the fate of her husband and son.

Last week, the family was again together as father and son stepped off an airplane at San Francisco International Airport.

Public Hearings Start Today

State Officials Favor Park

By RICK SULLIVAN

State officials continued a report Friday that the Department of Parks and Recreation considers the most developable area of San Bruno Mountain "prime property" for an urban park and encourages purchase of that area for open space.

Officials said the so-called "saddle area," 308 acres on which Visitation Associates wants to build some 5,400 housing units, would make an "excellent urban park."

Visitation Associates also has proposed developing other areas of the mountain, but according to Brisbane Councilwoman Anja Miller, the state is not interested in these areas at this time.

Mrs. Miller said Friday she and other county council persons met with both Claire Dedrick, State Resources Agency director, and Herb Rhodes, State Parks and Recreation Department director, early this week and were told the state wants to help San Mateo County purchase the saddle area of the mountain for an urban park.

Mrs. Miller, who spoke after Brisbane Mayor Art Montenegro cancelled a press conference on the issue, said she met with Mrs. Dedrick and Rhodes during her trip to Sacramento to attend a League of California cities conference. She said both officials indicated they would welcome an application for state funds to help purchase the mountain area for an urban park.

Montenegro cancelled the press conference, because he said Brisbane council persons wanted to meet with county officials to discuss further the mountain issue.

Mrs. Miller said Friday she would speak for the issue, but emphasized she was only speaking for herself, not the council.

Contacted in Sacramento Friday, Mrs. Dedrick said she had made it clear to County Supervisors Jim Fitzgerald and Jean Fassler at a meeting with them in late March that she considered the saddle area of the mountain a "very important area for an urban park."

She said she told the supervisors that the state would be receptive to an application for funds to purchase a part of the mountain.

Mrs. Miller said the supervisors travelled to Sacramento to talk with state officials because the North San Mateo County Council of Cities had passed a resolution, 1943 Jan. 2 calling for the supervisors to use "every resource available . . . in order to purchase as much useable park area to serve the recreational and open space needs of North San Mateo County."

Mrs. Dedrick said when she met with the supervisors she had asked Fitzgerald if he knew if the North County cities would contribute to the purchase of the saddle area of the mountain. She said Fitzgerald said he did not know.

On April 14, Fitzgerald wrote a letter to Mayor Montenegro stating, "Mrs. Dedrick has asked me to request your city, as well as the cities of Daly City, Colma, South San Francisco, San Bruno and San Francisco to appropriate funds to increase the size of the park on San Bruno Mountain."

"I never asked him to write that letter," Mrs. Dedrick said. "I merely wanted to know if he knew if the local cities wanted to help in paying for an area we consider a prime area for an urban park."

Fitzgerald is in Hawaii and was unavailable for comment. Mrs. Fassler was in a meeting late Friday afternoon and was also unavailable for comment.

"We don't want to force the county to do anything," Mrs. Dedrick said. "If the local governments don't concur with what we think should be done with the mountain, then we won't lean on them. We are not a Big Brother administration."

"But if the county decides that the area should be used as an open park, then we would like to provide help. The county and the local cities have to get to decide what they want to do with the mountain before we will do anything," she said.

Max Meyer, administrative assistant to the county manager, said yesterday he believed the state was not interested at this time in helping to buy the mountain, because zoning of the area has not been resolved.

The County Planning Commission is scheduled to hold the first of a series of public hearing on the zoning of San Bruno Mountain Wednesday.

Meyer said that depending on how the mountain is zoned, the county may submit an application for funds from the state, but that, he said, would most likely not come until the next fiscal year.

The chief of the State Parks and Recreation Department and Acquisition Program, Lee McCargo said the department would prefer to wait until the zoning of the mountain was determined before allocating funds for the area. But he said the department has determined that San Bruno Mountain "should be in public ownership."

"It is a resource beneficial to park use," he said.

Transit Board Move On Area System Seen

By FRANK LAPIERRE

The San Mateo County Transit District Board of Directors is expected to be prodded into taking some positive action on implementation of a county-wide transit system today.

Acting general manager of the district, Sid Cantwell, in a recent five-page memorandum said that unless action is immediately taken the district could lose certain government funding, might delay the starting time for an overall comprehensive transit system for San Mateo County, and would most certainly add to the disillusionment now being voiced by some cities over why it is taking so long to implement a bus plan.

Two of the biggest steps Cantwell thinks the board should take is (1) the hiring of a full-time general manager, and (2) entering into a joint powers agreement which would enable the SMCTD to take over — at least on paper — city transit systems in the county.

The exception to this take over will be the privately owned Northgate Transit Co. in Daly City and the Redwood City transit system. These two systems were not funded with Transit Development Act (TDA) money, it was explained.

Transit District chairman and County Supervisor Edward J. Bacciero was informed by Paul C. Watt, executive director of the Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC), in a May 20, 1975 letter that the SMCTD must take over ownership of all capital equipment from the individual cities prior to July 1, 1975.

Watt reminded Bacciero that TDA rules stipulate that an operator claiming TDA funds "must own the equipment, establish routes and frequency of service, regulate and collect fares, and otherwise control the efficiency and quality of the operational system."

Nat Gage, of the MTC, said a joint powers agreement would likely satisfy the time being.

"If (the take over) would be merely paperwork. There is no money involved," Gage said.

But no moves have thus far been made by the SMCTD toward controlling the fragmented bus systems now cropping up in several county cities, it was learned.

Without the agreement and a preliminary general plan, outlining what direction the SMCTD intends to go, some $2 million in Urban Mass Transportation Assistance Act (UMTA) funds could be lost to other Bay Area agencies, specifically the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, A.C. Transit and Golden Gate Transit.

Cantwell wants the board to adopt a general transit statement as a general plan for the district, and to set a public hearing date on the matter for 7:30 p.m. July 9.

He thinks the district already has sufficient information on local transit needs and he wants the board to assimilate this information in one general plan.

Adoption of this plan would mean the district could submit a tentative budget allowing the district to put in for federal funds apportioned to San Mateo County under an established formula, Cantwell noted.

Meanwhile, some cities like San Bruno, have voiced frustration at the progress thus far made by the SMCTD.

In a May 2, 1974 letter to the district, San Bruno officials said:

"During all the discussions leading up to the ballot measure, the plan was to eliminate individual systems and have a county-wide system. After the election authorizing creation of the transit district, and realizing that it would take a few months for the district to be staffed and organized, we in San Bruno further delayed our local plan so as to avoid duplication of effort and to let the district perform its function."

"Now, new independent systems are being created without coordinating with the whole plan."

The letter said the announcement that it may take up to two years before a full service transit system is inaugurated "is unsettling news."

San Bruno's concerns have been voiced by other cities in the county in recent weeks.

In Daly City officials said they also had delayed any action on implementation of their own bus system pending action by the SMCTD.

And they also voiced concern the district was heading toward establishment of a fragmented bus system.

"This is not what the voters of San Mateo County have decided they want,"

Daly City Mayor Victor Kyriakidis said.

Discrimination Against Woman In D.C. Alleged

Salary negotiations between Daly City and its more than 390 employees were suspended last week after it was learned a Fair Employment Practices Commission investigator has charged the city with discrimination against women in its pay practices.

City Atty. Albert Polonsky immediately ordered talks be suspended until clarification of the charges could be learned.

Polonsky said to continue with negotiations could further violate any findings the FEPC might reach at its June 5 meeting on the issue.

To date, the city has held 12 negotiating meetings with various departments in the city. No agreements have been signed, it was learned.

The Post learned that the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union, Local 919, filed a complaint with the FEPC in May, 1974.

Recently, Ms. B. J. Miller, an investigator for the FEPC, conducted an investigation into the charges and filed her report with the commission.

Although Ms. Miller said she has completed her investigation into the charges, no action has so far been taken by the commission, she said.

Ms. Miller said she felt suspension of the negotiations was "unwarranted," and said "I want to ask the city attorney why he called off the dogs."

Her report was "misinterpreted," Ms. Miller said. FEPC, a long process has to be undertaken, it was explained.

But Polonsky said he did not want to risk further alleged violations "until I have had time to go over the legalities involved."

He said the city is "caught in the middle" on this action.

Daly City, like other municipalities, is required to negotiate with employees under provisions of the Meyers-Millias, Brown Act.

However, the FEPC report compiled by Ms. Miller alleges the city has discriminated in what it pays certain working women categories, according to Polonsky.

Of the some 374 persons employed in Daly City, it is estimated 100 are members of Local 919.

About 45 per cent of city workers are women. However, it was not made clear what categories are affected by the alleged discrimination practices.

Area Beaches: Record Crowds

San Mateo County's beaches and parks were jam-packed Memorial Day weekend in a record-shattering outpouring of sun-lovers, picnickers and campers.

There were many cars on the Coast that some California Highway Patrol officers were said to have run out of parking tickets.

Officially, traffic backed up on the San Mateo-Half Moon Bay Highway 92 all the way from Half Moon Bay to Crystal Springs Lakes Monday afternoon, bringing on a CHP "Sig-Alert" with officers called in to direct traffic at the junction with Route 1.

The CHP estimated upwards of 80,000 vehicles on Route 1, as against a normal daily volume of 8,000.

A State Beaches and Parks official at Half Moon Bay said that the turnout was one-third larger than he had ever seen, with visitors parking in lots never used before and all along the highway.

The CHP reported it was kept busy tagging illegally parked cars particularly at Devil's Slide, where a "made beach" is reached by climbing down cliffs. A small parking lot there quickly overflowed.

Every beach also overflowed with the county officials indicated.

There was one major exception.

Woman Falls Into Vat of Thinner, Dies

A Daly City woman who fell into a vat of flaming paint thinner Friday died Saturday at San Francisco General Hospital.

Mrs. Ruth N. Traversy, 58, wife of L. B. Traversy, received burns over most of her body when she fell into the burning liquid at her husband's company — the B & T Spray Equipment Company — in San Francisco.

A San Francisco Fire Department official said the two-alarm fire at 45 Elmire St. started when highly flammable paint thinner ignited.

No funeral services were held. Cremation and interment at Olivet Memorial Park, Colma. Donations to the Heart Fund are preferred, a family spokesman said.

Regional Planners OK Bikeway Idea

By GEORGE GOLDING

A proposed "bikeways" plan for San Mateo County was approved "in principle" Thursday night by the Regional Planning Committee and will be forwarded to the San Mateo County Planning Commission for review and eventual action by the County Board of Supervisors.

The plan envisions three major north-south bikeways, and three east-west "corridors" in which bicycling paths or lanes could be established.

Funds to help establish the bike routes are at least partially available, the committee was told by Mrs. Jean Rumsore, chairman of the County Bikeways Committee which developed the plan.

Though details may be altered by the county planners, the scheme is to establish a network of bike trails or lanes that could serve San Mateo County residents both for utility transportation, and for recreation riding roads, and "routes" which are on existing roads without even the separation of striping.

Paths and lanes are the recommended types for use, explained bikeways committee staffer Bill Kritikos.

Among north-south corridors, a route along El Camino Real would have top priority, the bikeways committee said. Next would come a route along Alameda de las Pulgas, then Highway 1 along the coast, the Skyline-Canada Road corridor, and a bayfront route.

For east-west travel, first priority was given to Highway 92 with Crystal Springs Road and Laurewood Canyon as feeders, then a route near but not on Sharp Park Road, then Edgewood Road, Woodside Road, Alpine and Sandhill Roads, and Guadalupe Canyon and Alemany Boulevards in the North County.

Quizzed by RPC members, committee representative Bob Emert of the County Parks and Recreation Department explained that the "utility" routes were felt to show the greatest need for use by the greatest number of people.

He said that recreational priorities alone would place "Old Skyline and Canada Road" at the top of the list, followed by "the coastal route."

Mrs. Rumsore and other speakers for the bikeways group explained that establishment of bikeways by the County would apply only to unincorporated areas but that city routes should coordinate with the county plan if cities expect state and federal funding.

RPC members objected that some of the designated routes, particularly along El Camino Real, would require elimination of parking.

Mrs. Rumsore said that prohibition of parking is one solution, but that there are others.

Objections were made to the use of either Highway 92 between Crystal Springs Lakes and Half Moon Bay, or Sharp Park Road as dangerous. Mrs. Rumsore said the bikeways committee suggested separate bike paths in such locations.

"Our problem," said Emert, "is that the bicyclists are there now. The question is how to make it safe for them, and for the motorists."

Regional Planning Committee members accepted a city-county highways program report from Chief Deputy County Engineer Bob Sans, and agreed to ask the County to extend an existing fund-sharing plan for two years.

Acting on another motion, committee president Lore Radisch of San Carlos then appointed a seven-member subcommittee to review this and other transportation problems and report back to RPC at next month's meeting.

The committee, she said, should consider whether a further continuation of the present highways plan is proper, or whether major revisions should be made and how to go about making revisions if necessary.

A motion by Millbrae Planning Commissioner Don Junkin to review the Airport Land Use Committee's rejection of plans for a high-rise building in Millbrae, was rejected.

Anita Miller of Brisbane asked the RPC to appeal to the county supervisors to apply for federal land and water conservation funds to buy the San Bruno Mountain "saddle."

After objecting that the county could not apply for such funds without adopting a master plan for the area, and completing environmental impact reports and other planning steps, county planner Don Woolfe agreed to write a letter to the Supervisors asking them to "explore" such funds.

Committee members agreed to meet at the Burlingame Library next month, seeking a "less formal" atmosphere than Burlingame City Council chambers.

A scheduled vote on an RPC by-laws amendment, to permit cities to appoint local businessmen and property owners, who are not residents, as their representatives, was not taken.

Mrs. Radisch explained that existing by-laws require 18 voting members to be present for such an action, and only 16 were present.

Dance Troupe Needs Funds To Match Grant

San Francisco's Dancers Forum, a troupe of high school age students from limited income families, has received a $4,500 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

The money will be used to finance a nine week summer program for 75 young dancers. Forum founder, Tance Johnson has made an appeal to private and public agencies for matching funds needed to secure the grant.

They perform in schools and community centers and were featured on a special KQED-TV program.

Donations may be sent to Dancers Forum, 1512 Lilac Lane, Mt. View, Calif. 94040.

Pacifica City Attorney Resigns

John Sherman is resigning as city attorney of Pacifica, effective August 19, but has given no specific reason for doing so.

He submitted a two-page letter "to the City Council and citizens of the City of Pacifica." The only reference to his leaving was a paragraph near the end which read:

"It is with deep regret that I leave the city which has provided me with the many opportunities for the years now more than one council member, and several residents, call for his ouster. Council members would question his legal advice and residents often expressed concern that he became too involved in decision making.

All outward appearances indicate the resignation was voluntary. However, although there is no expressed connection, the council at its last Monday session did adjourn to an executive session.

"I think it (resignation) was something that was coming," said Mayor Stan Farber. "It's difficult for any top administrator when he doesn't have the full support of the council. He's been with us a long time and I guess it's time for a change, just like when a councilman has been on the council too long."

Farber said there was no question about the fact a conflict, particularly in time schedules, existed after Sherman took on the added duty as San Carlos city attorney.

"Obviously there's been some discontentment on both sides," added Farber concerning recurring controversies over Sherman retaining the post. "A city isn't going to crumble when any one man leaves."

"I really think John always had the best interests of the city at heart. There's no doubt in my mind about that, even when he became short-tempered," said Farber.

Councilman Aubrey Lumley said, "I think Mr. Sherman was an excellent attorney in court on behalf of the City of Pacifica."

Councilman Sid Lorvan said he would have no comment, saying he was not aware of the resignation and he didn't want to comment until he had time to study the situation. "I may wish to comment in the future," he said.

Both Councilwomen Grace McCarthy, who has supported Sherman in the past, and Janice Falloff, who has been one of his critics, were out of town and unavailable for comment. Mayor Farber said the city would be following regular League of California Cities procedures in advertising to replace Sherman, and expected to hire someone within 90 days.

personal advancement. My resignation will be effective August 19, 1975, with the exception of certain litigation which is now in progress and upon which I will serve as litigation counsel until completion.

The letter had an official "received May 19, 1975," City Hall stamp on it.

Contacted late Tuesday afternoon about the specifics of the resignation, Sherman responded, "I have no comment other than what is set forth in the letter."

Sherman began as deputy city attorney in 1962 and was named city attorney in 1968. This past February he also was hired as city attorney in San Carlos. His associate, Bill Galstan, attended most of the Pacifica meetings while Sherman concentrated more on San Carlos.

Aviation Advisory Disbands

A resolution disbanding the five-year-old Aviation Advisory Committee was approved Tuesday by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

In its action, the board endorsed a recommendation by county administrative officials that the committee be made an ad hoc advisory group to the Regional Planning Committee.

The board's action was opposed by James Bigelow, the sole remaining member of the five-member committee.

Bigelow pointed out that the RPC has been designated by the board as the Airport Land Use Committee and that state law prohibits the ALUC from setting operating modes at county airports. That one was the duty of the advisory committee.

Supervisor Jean Fassler said that the advisory committee had done an "excellent job" when the airports were "grasping for existence."

Mayor Crowns Connie McHale Miss Daly City

Connie McHale, a vivacious brunette who is a cheerleader at Westmoor High School, was crowned Miss Daly City by Mayor Victor Kyriakis at a fashion luncheon sponsored by the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce, at the Franciscan Mobile Home Manor last week.

First runner-up was Lisa Cooper, from Jefferson High School and second runner-up was Cheryl Taylor of Westmoor. Named as Miss Congeniality was Karen Sapienza.

The Chamber of Commerce event drew a crowd of 200 persons.

The affair had been dedicated to a recognition of women as being equal partners with men.

Judges for the contest included Bill Flanagan, promotion director for Serramonte Shopping Center; Jane Arney, sales manager at Macy's in Serramonte, and Brian Shea, free lance photographer from the RYKA Company in San Francisco.

Fashion ensembles were furnished by McDonald's clothing store in Serramonte. The event was emceed by Carole Borelli, Miss Daly City of 1972.

Al Vial, chamber president, expressed special thanks to Jim Sargen, general manager of Serramonte Center, and the chamber's staff, who were instrumental in making the event a success.

As the new Miss Daly City, Connie received a $200 cash award, a scuba diving course, installation of a telephone and service for one year donated by the chamber, a $50 gift certificate, a 14 karat gold pendant, and a dinner for two. All contestants received a $100 gift certificate. 1319 City City at the San Mateo County Fiesta Dream Girl Pageant, and she will be serving as official hostess at ribbon cuttings, ground-breakings, and other civic affairs during her reign as Miss Daly City.

Feature Editor Laura Del Rosso, Editor-in-Chief Anne Hilo and News Editor Karen Kerby, all seniors, were each recipients of $100 journalism scholarship awards from advisor Le Pacini.

Other awards presented at the banquet were as follows: Best News Story, Tom Minshew, a junior, on how he and his band of "Minutemen" stole the traditional anchor from Oceana before their big football game. Laura Del Rosso's story, on teen suicide, "I think I'm gonna kill myself," topped the feature category. "Prices are going to Pot," a survey in inflationary effects

Sorority Heads FHAR Talk

Xi Lambda Phi, Beta Sigma's Exemplar Chapter in Pacifica met at the home of Arlene Schaff, April 22.

Vice President Lorraine Donner introduced guest speakers, Harold Simpson, president of the F.H.A.R., and an F.H.A.R. director, Greta Sorenson, who discussed the work of their group.

F.H.A.R. is an abbreviation for "Family Homes for Adult Retarded, Inc.," a non-profit organization dedicated to helping the young adult retarded. This organization of 35 members was begun by concerned parents who support and operate "Horizon Home," a residence in Belmont occupied by six young retarded men, about 19, 20, and 21 years old, who are learning how to live more independently.

A married couple lives in to counsel and guide them, and to offer them the training necessary to make their lives more productive and successful.

Taking care of the house as well as themselves is an important phase of the program. Each pays for his own room and board through part-time jobs.

President Charlotte Allen presented the guests with the chapter's donation of $190 to be devoted to the purchase of an 80 gallon, commercial-type water heater for the home. The chapter also has voted to make a contribution to the teen-age and children's wards at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City.

Information concerning the foregoing needs was gathered through the untiring efforts of Service Chairwoman Joanne Geertsema.

Beta Sigma Phi, an international cultural, social and service sorority for women, has five chapters in Pacifica. Alpha Alpha Omicron, Delta Delta Tau, Preceptor Delta Zeta, Tau Gamma and Xi Lambda Phi. There is also a City Council of Beta Sigma Phi. Its officers drawn from these chapters.

This year's contribution amounted to $668.

The highlight of the 44th Founders Day Banquet held by Pacifica chapters at Nick's Rockaway Restaurant April 30 were the announcements of each chapter's choice of "Girl of the Year."

The member who most faithfully exemplifies the ideals of Beta Sigma Phi is chosen in her chapter by secret ballot, her name kept secret to all members until its revelation at this annual celebration.

Audrey Manabe served as toastmistress.

Alpha Alpha Omicron's "Girl of the Year" choice was outgoing vice president Dorothy Girdler. Delta Delta Tau named its outgoing corresponding secretary, Charlotte Bottom.

Donna Shapton presented Preceptor Delta Zeta's "Girl of the Year," Virginia Sharp, the incoming vice president of Beta Sigma Phi City Council.

Tau Gamma selected outgoing President Jan Tambo and Xi Lambda Phi's choice was outgoing President Charlotte Allen.

'Optional' P.E. Class Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Physical education courses could be optional for 11th and 12th graders under legislation signed into law by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The bill by Sen. Arlen Gregorio would let school districts decide whether they wanted to make P.E. classes mandatory for those grades.

Those districts making the course optional would have to provide a variety of P.E. electives.

Gregorio said Monday the bill would "further the real goal of physical education: to equip students with the skills and desire to remain physically fit for the rest of their lives."

"Many P.E. teachers, under no effective pressure to make P.E. interesting, tend to emphasize competitive athletics and other activities of interest to only a highly skilled minority of students," Gregorio added.

IT'S YOUR MONEY

Q. My son goes to school full time and gets social security benefits. He wants to take a part time job. Does he have to report his earnings to social security?

A. If his earnings for 1974 will be over $2,400, he should report them to social security. Otherwise, he might get benefits he'll have to pay back later. His benefits will be reduced by $1 for each $2 over $2,400. But no matter how much he earns for the year, he can get his full social security benefit for any month he doesn't earn over $200.

Petrocchi Memorial Fund

Daly City Student Receives Grant

Robert Foiles, 16, a sophomore student from Serramonte High School, will soon be on his way to attend the 35th annual session of the Junior Statesmen Summer School in Sacramento, with the help of the Roland Petrocchi Memorial Trust Fund, and other local service clubs.

Robert was praised by his teachers as an outstanding student and athlete, who has maintained a high grade point average, and by his employer as "a most reliable young man, mature beyond his years."

The curriculum of the Junior Statesmen program includes Contemporary American Government, Speech and Debate, and Practicum in Leadership. It is designed to build a deeper understanding of the functions and principles of government, at all levels, and to establish a clear definition of the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

The Roland Petrocchi Memorial Trust Fund was founded in June, 1974, with the purpose of keeping alive the memory of the late chief of police, who died Easter Day 1974. The purpose of the fund was to provide scholarships and grants to deserving persons in furtherance of their education and training in the field of law enforcement or related areas.

First National Bank of Daly City, Frank Spadarella, owner of a Daly City restaurant, and Mr. Chris Giotinis, owner of an electronics store in Daly City. The late Bernard "Bud" Lyett was also a member of the original board.

The committee is composed of a larger number of prominent Daly City citizens, who have supported the fund with contributions of cash and personal services.

Chief Petrocchi was a strong supporter of police educational programs. He has great belief in the furtherance of the education of young men and women to prepare them for the future in police work. It was with this thought in mind the memorial was created, and is being carried on.

attention of the Board when he appealed to the Police Athletic League for assistance. The PAL is not in a position to provide this kind of assistance, but Chief Hansen, acting through Lt. Tom Culley of the Community Division, was able to bring this request to the attention of the Board members, and facilitate the award of the grant.

After meeting with Robert, the grant, in the amount of $250, half of the cost of the tuition and expenses, was awarded. The check was presented May 21, at the First National Bank.

Robert was able to raise the balance of the funds from personal savings, and contributions from a variety of other service clubs.

HERE'S HOW IT'S DONE

Terry Andersen, a Millbrae farrier who works at Golden Gate Park, shows how he shoes a horse.

He Plans to Keep Up the Hard Work

Terry Andersen's hands are dirty, work-worn and calloused. His youthful face is ruddy and his arms tanned from constant exposure to sun and wind.

He works long hours — often 13 a day — in a stooped position.

"I plan to keep at it for 20 years or as long as I last," he said.

Andersen is a farrier, a craftsman who shoes horses. He commutes from his Millbrae apartment to the riding stables at Golden Gate Park, where he has built up a large clientele.

"I do a lot of shoeing here," he said. "But I also travel to Tracy, Half Moon Bay and Dixon. I travel to where the horses are."

"Everybody says it's a dying breed, but if you own a horse, you'd know how many shoers there are," he continued. "It's the quality of the shoers they're watching now."

Andersen said that if a horse is cooperative, it takes 30 to 60 minutes to shoe it.

"You make between $16 and $24 per horse," he said. "But up north, where there are more farriers, it goes as low as $10. It usually goes by supply and demand."

Andersen propped the foreleg of a bay stallion against his jean-clad knees and a hammer in hand, began to work.

"Here! Stand up," he said roughly as the horse became restless and tried to relax its leg.

"I work from seven in the morning 'til eight at night," he said. "Picture going under a horse at seven in the morning and smelling manure. You get a little buggy."

"But you can't do it (shoe horses) and not like it," he continued. "You go through the heat and the bees and the flies and the smell until you can't get it off your hands."

He became interested in shoeing horses when he was a boy living in Walnut Creek, where he knew many farriers.

Andersen's family moved to Daly City, where he graduated from Westmoor High School. But his interest in horseshoeing stayed with him, so he attended the Oklahoma Farrier's College, an eight-week course that teaches the fundamentals of horseshoeing.

Andersen said that horses taken out of their natural environment, the prairie, need shoes to protect their feet.

The way a horse is shod has much to do with its gait, he explained. Horses that have a tendency to break their trot, to injure themselves by overreaching, to hic a crooke wa k can be hel ed by p oter shoes. Hhe sometimes arks aith a veterinarian to correct these problems.

"You shape the shoe to the horse's foot," he said. "If you shape the foot to the shoe, it would be like sticking your foot in a size three shoe and expecting to walk okay."

"They have to get new shoes every six to eight weeks," he continued. "If you don't do that their feet grow too long (like finger-nails) and their shoes don't fit right."

The horse's shoe goes around the front and sides of the sole and steps in back at the heel, leaving an opening so it can expand with each step.

"Some horses will get a little crazy on you," he said. "If you're shoeing a 5-year-old that's never been done before, you may have problems."

"You may have to sedate it. Or you may have to tie it to the ground. Sometimes, you have to use lip chains or bridles."

"Oh, they can get on you after a while," he said.

"Some of them are just waiting for you to turn around and bend down so they can kick you."

But Andersen said most horses behave well if the farrier is patient.

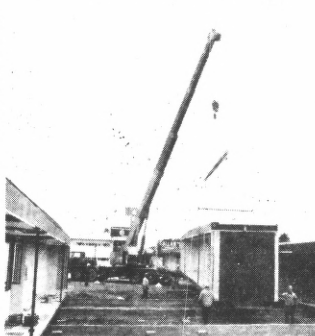

"The guy who does paper-work never sees the end product — never is satisfied," he said. "But take me — someone brings a bad-footed horse to me, and I work on it a couple hours and make it look real nice. It makes me sleep real good at night. There's a lot of gratification."

In the early predawn hours, ten 10x60 foot modular units were craned and bolted into position at Home Savings and Loan Association's new interim facility at 2800 Junipero Serra Blvd. The 6000 square foot structure will serve the needs of Home's customers until a permanent office is erected in the near future.

Home Savings has been using modular units, developed by Edward A. Fesser, founder of Profile Structures, Inc., for nearly a decade.

Early in the sixties a number of large banks and savings institutions became aware of the potential of modulars as solutions to problems with building permits and codes," said Fesser. "As a result of our early entry into the field, we soon became the leader in the design and construction of modular structures," Fesser added.

An outgrowth of office trailers, these prefabricated metal, wood and even marble covered structures easily are transported and can be erected in as little as six hours time. Home Savings has pioneered the use of larger modulars, the 4000 square foot Daly City office being one of the largest yet erected with the exception of a 10,000 square foot Home Savings facility in San Diego's Pacific Beach area. The advantage of low cost, the ability to recycle modulars from one site to another, and the speed of construction all make modulars a viable alternative to more permanent types of buildings. In downtown Los Angeles, Home Savings has erected a two-story office with travertine marble exterior treatment. Set in front of a Grasscrete parking surface, it

Learning to Read With 'Astro'

By MICHELLE CARTER
Post Staff Writer

The kindergarten children at Ponderosa School in South San Francisco have a daily visitor in their classroom. They bring him presents, they get presents from him, they sing songs with him but they never see him.

He's an extra-terrestrial creature named Astro, a visitor from outer space, who happens to be imaginary, but that doesn't diminish the impact he has on the kindergartners. Because of him and the program built around him, they are learning to read with great success and without exception.

Astro is the flag-bearer of the Alphaphonics reading program developed at Ponderosa School over the last five years by three teachers: Jeanne Stout, Judy Brown and Gretchen Ross. The program operates on the fundamental principles of early and reinforced success for the children and positive expectations on the part of the teacher. Mrs. Brown explained in a recent interview.

The program includes daily 20 to 30 minute lesson plans in which the teacher introduces a new letter on Monday of each week. The other days of the week are devoted to learning the sound of the letter, identifying it and printing it. Worksheet exercises reinforce the lesson of the day, and Astro provides the fun.

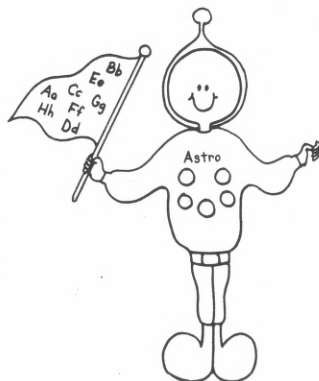

"Fantasy really grows about Astro. Children ask 'Is he married?' They decorate a chair for him and on Tuesdays we ask the children to bring a surprise for Astro," Mrs. Brown said. The "surprise" is an item (a picture of the item) that begins with the letter of the week.

"We invented him to make the whole thing lots of fun."

As the name implies, Alphaphonics uses a phonetic approach to reading and encourages children to decode words by identifying the sounds of the letters in the word. The children learn a song which is sung some time during the lesson period every day that emphasizes the sounds of every letter, and repeat a poem that uses the sound of the letter many times.

"The poem was included because each child learns in a different way. Some children learn auditorially," Mrs. Stout said.

But the teachers believe that all children learn when the teacher has positive expectations, reinforces the lesson with praise and refuses to permit the child to fail. All worksheets are corrected before the child leaves for the day, and any child who has not mastered the lesson gets personal attention until he can be rewarded with a "happy face" on his worksheet, too.

"It is terribly important for a child to have very positive self-esteem in his first school experience," Mrs. Brown said.

By the end of the school year the children are reading ordinary children's story books without assistance, and when each child completes a new book, he or she is invited to read the book to the principal, Dr. Lorene Jacobson, who rewards the children with candy from a basket on her desk.

For the children, this is the ultimate success. Mrs. Stout pointed out.

It's fitting that Dr. Jacobson is involved in the application of the Alphaphonics program since it was she who inspired the teachers to develop it.

"In 1968, when Dr. Jacobson came to Ponderosa, the IQs of our children were average, but their achievement levels were below average. She urged us to get going and do something about it," Mrs. Ross said. "We were a little torn between wanting to keep the traditional kindergarten and still introduce academics."

The district administrators had similar reservations.

"When we started here, the district office told us not to teach reading," Mrs. Brown said.

"There was a time when we not only weren't encouraged, but not allowed to teach (academics in kindergarten). You had to sneak to teach them," Mrs. Ross added.

"But Dr. Jacobson kept saying 'Write a book, girls, write a book.' We heard it often enough that we began to believe we could do it," Mrs. Brown said. The Alphaphonics program was the result of Dr. Jacobson's urging, and she gave constant support to the teachers while they were developing it.

The first Astro was a cloth doll constructed by Judy Brown. He no longer makes classroom appearances and now spends his time traveling from reading conference to conference to promote Alphaphonics. But Astro is about to get some help from the government.

The Right to Read effort of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare recently named Alphaphonics one of 12 exceptional privately funded programs that it will help publicize and disseminate to schools throughout the country.

Now when teachers and administrators around the country query the department about effective reading programs, the department will send them an abstract about Alphaphonics and put them in touch with the North County teachers. The department also produced a film strip and posters about the program and packaged the material conveniently so that the women will have a professional reading "package" to present to prospective users.

At this time more than 60 schools in California are using the program, and letters are arriving at the Alphaphonics post office box in increasing numbers as the word spreads. The teachers have impressive statistics to quote in support of the program.

"Dr. Jacobson has followed Alphaphonics children through the third grade and they have consistently scored higher statistically than the control group," Mrs. Brown said.

Because of such success, the California Instructional Television Consortium is using Alphaphonics in producing a series entitled "What Do You Expect?" which will be aired on educational television next fall. Teachers, parents and aides will be able to receive credit for the course through the state college system.

This may introduce the program to many school districts who are in no financial position to take on expensive reading programs. With Alphaphonics, each school needs only one copy of the book; the worksheets in the book are reproduced for the children to use. The book and Astro's Bag (in which he brings surprises for the children) cost only $29.95 and never need replacing — a far cry from some programs that require an investment of hundreds of dollars.

"Alphaphonics doesn't involve a lot of tapes and sophisticated equipment. It feeds into any other reading system as a supplement or as the primary system," Mrs. Ross added.

If getting children hooked on reading at an early age isn't enough of a benefit, Mrs. Ross notes another. "When you teach children to read early, you discover learning disability youngsters a year younger and get them into special classes earlier."

And all three agree there's no limit to what children who have known early success in school can achieve.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

If there were such a thing as a "miracle diet" chicken ought to go right at the top of the menu. Calorie charts of meat we commonly eat show chicken has fewest calories. A three-ounce portion of skinned broiled chicken breast has a dainty 115 calories. And if you spice it appetizingly the bits and pinches of aromatics won't add even a whole calorie per portion.

You can eat imaginatively seasoned chicken frequently without its getting monotonous for there are unlimited spices, herbs, seasoning vegetables and combinations of these which will permit a tempting parade of this thirty fowl.

Chicken Ratatouille is a delicious example of how well you can eat and still pare away pounds. For this dish, chicken is cooked with tomatoes, eggplant, zucchini and mushrooms and seasoned temptingly with bay leaf, onion and garlic powders and a bit of oregano.

CHICKEN RATATOUILLE

2½ to 3 pound chicken, cut up

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, broken up
- 1 small eggplant, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 small zucchini, cut into 2x1-inch fingers
- ½ pound fresh mushrooms, halved
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crumbled

Sprinkle the chicken parts with the one teaspoon salt and fourth teaspoon pepper. Place chicken, skin side up, on a rack on a shallow roasting pan. Bake in preheated, very hot oven (450 degrees) until browned, about 20 minutes. Remove chicken and the rack; pour off any fat from pan.

Reduce temperature to moderate (350 degrees). In roasting pan combine the one pound can tomatoes, cubed eggplant, two sliced zucchini, half pound mushrooms, one bay leaf, one teaspoon onion powder, one-half teaspoon garlic powder and one teaspoon crushed oregano. Place chicken pieces over top of the vegetable mixture; spoon some of the sauce over the chicken. Cover and bake in moderate oven for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake until chicken is fork-tender, 15 to 20 minutes.

Serves four generously.

NEW MEDIA

John Sullivan, Daly City Public Library community services librarian, explains equipment to Mrs. John Connolly, president of The Friends of the Daly City Library. Sullivan has arranged a program which will be a showcase for the new media, video tape, to be presented at the annual meeting of The Friends on May 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers, city hall. Program will include Daly City residents recalling the past and other samples of what may be done with video tape. Mrs. Hubert Sandefur, chairwoman, advises the public is invited to attend.

Petition Supports Rec Building

A petition signed by 97 residents who support construction of a small recreation building near Portola Highlands School, was presented to San Bruno Parks and Recreation Commissioner Hank Sidall Thursday morning.

The presentation comes just one week after the Portola Highlands Homeowners Association voted 21-1 to reject the city's offer to build the 1,000-square-foot facility.

The petition was presented by Judy and Peter Beltrano, of 3230 Sneath Lane. Beltrano was the lone member of the homeowners' association casting the vote favoring construction of the center.

Mike Doener, assistant director of parks and recreation, said the petition would be presented with the results of the homeowners' association vote tally to the commission at its Wednesday meeting.

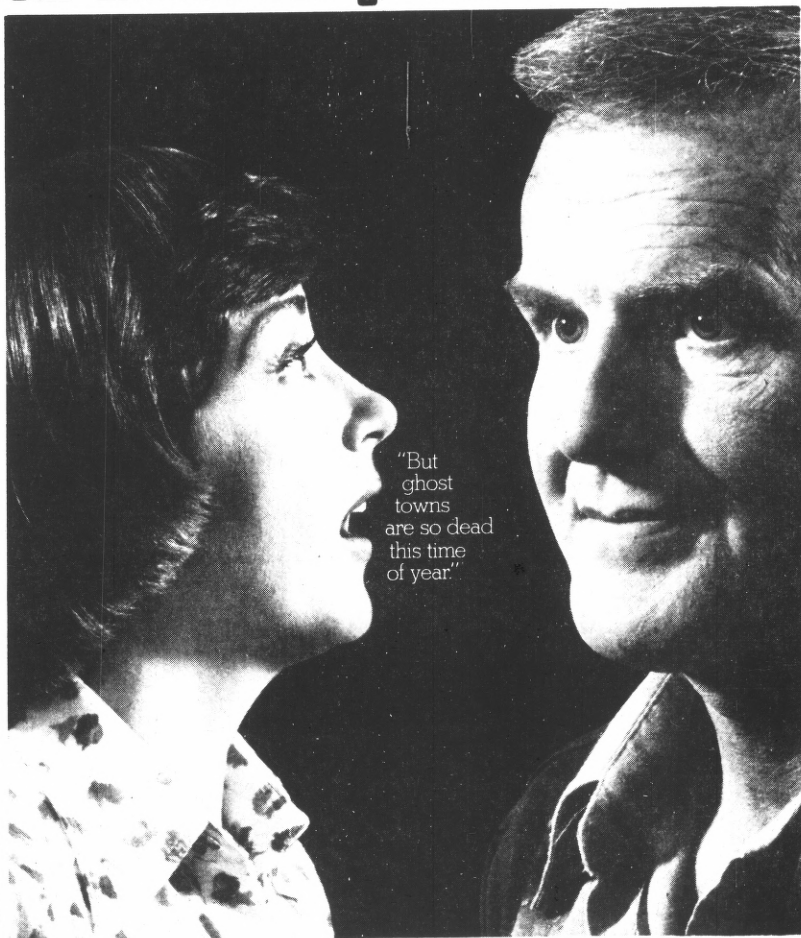

His door-to-door campaign, Beltrano said, showed that the association does not really represent the majority of the residents of Portola Highlands.

He said in the homes surveyed he found five residents who opposed the facility and seven undecided.

At the May 14 homeowners meeting Association President Elmer Butler said the homeowners indicated that rather than building a small facility, the city should donate the estimated $35,000 involved toward construction of a major recreation facility at Skyline College.

Park and Recreation Director Paul Crumm said it was unlikely that the revenue sharing money could be used to help finance a Skyline recreation center.

Church Building Fund Campaign Begins

Rev. James M. Moher, pastor of St. Andrew's announced recently, the beginning of the St. Andrew's Church and Community Center building fund appeal.

May 20 the active phase of the appeal got under way with a meeting for the volunteer workers at the temporary church's center.

At that meeting, in which Father Moher and Carlyle D. Hillsman, co-chairman, presided, the volunteer workers composed of St. Andrew's parishioners, were given their final instructions and first assignments for parish wide visitations.

The volunteer workers' chore during the next three weeks of the active phase of the appeal, will be to visit personally their fellow parishioners to explain the nature of the appeal and invite them to participate by subscribing a gift which is payable over a 30-month period.

The more substantial gift can be paid over a longer period of time. Also, they will be explaining the many uses of the new church and center and how they will benefit from them.

The objective of the appeal is to raise $310,000 or as much as possible to absorb construction costs incurred for the completion of the new church and center.

The total cost of the building is $664,000. Of that,

CHURCH FUND CHAIRMEN

Carlyle Hillsman and Father James W. Moher, co-chairmen of the St. Andrew's Church building fund, look over model of the church and community center to be constructed in Daly City.

$354,000 already has been realized from the sale of excess land and gifts by some parishioners from a previous appeal.

The new church and center will lie on a plot of land south of Mary's Help Hospital on Southgate and Sullivan Avenues. Construction should be completed by late June or early July of this year.

Some of the structural highlights will include a permanent chapel for daily Masses, private meditation and weddings; a large multi-use area for social functions, a kitchen, conference rooms; and offices for educational programs.

During the volunteers' meetings, Father Moher expressed his gratitude to all his parishioners for showing the cooperation and enthusiasm one needs to offset the biggest challenge the six year old parish will ever encounter.

He said "Our subscription campaign plan is to visit the members of our parish to discuss the many uses our new church and center will afford to all. I feel sure that all members of the parish will cooperate as best they can."

Hillsman also was gratified to see so much enthusiasm generated by the workers. He said that on his visits thus far, he was impressed by the way his fellow parishioners received him. "I personally feel the new church and center will be an architectural landmark, adding to the beauty of Daly City."

The appeal, which is being directed by Community Counseling Service, Inc. of San Francisco, will be divided into three phases of visitations. The first phase, known as the advance gift phase, is almost completed; the special or intermediate phase began May 20, and the windup or general phase. These active phases for the appeal should be completed on June 13.

Friends of St. Andrew's that may wish to participate in the appeal are asked to contact Father Moher at the rectory (415) 756-3330 or the appeal headquarters at the temporary church and center (415) 902-4577.

What Ought To Be Taught

From the what's new-and-different department comes the story of a classroom exercise wherein the wolf who harassed Little Riding Hood is placed under surveillance, arrested and brought to trial before a jury of school children.

While this exercise is supposed to teach children to appreciate the law enforcement elements of our government, in more than one incident the jury has declared the wolf innocent because his rights were violated.

So that's different. The American Bar Association is urging the schools to make lessons in law enforcement a "top priority" in the elementary school curriculum.

Then there are schools for mentally gifted children. They are both new and different. In Torrance, California there is such a school. Here sixth graders write novels while fourth, fifth and sixth graders cut cassettes in foreign languages for the instruction of less gifted human beings. Students, too bright for regular school-work learn by tutoring children in lower grades.

CONVENTIONAL equipment will not do for this school, thus it is equipped with microscopes, chemistry sets, filmstrip cameras, even parlor games. Even equipment for book-binding and puppet making is found in this school; so are adult encyclopedias and subject handbooks, for Victor School is involved in a program that a teacher termed "academic enrichment" for people who are too smart for "average classroom work."

So that's new and different, but there are things that are stranger. A kindergarten in Tennessee meets at a rural resort called Cave Springs and studies the "three R's" with the great outdoors for a classroom and no chairs or desks or blackboards. Meanwhile, in the State of Maine six year olds scour rocky beaches for driftwood, shells and other treasures. Their teachers dress in wetsuits and aquanogs and periodically plunge into the icy ocean to obtain specimens of marine plants and animals for the children to observe. These schools and hundreds of others are part of the environmental education programs that may be found in every state and seem strange to the spelling bee and green-state generations.

But there's more. How about dog education in our schools? "Just as the need for reading, writing and arithmetic will remain constant in our society," writes Betty Mae Regan, "the ABC responsibilities of pet animal care will also remain in a steadfast requirement." Mrs. Regan is crusading up and down California for classes in animal training as part of the elementary school curriculum.

HERE'S HOW it works. To the Carnilian School in Alta Loma, Betty Regan took her beagles, Tuffie, Tu and Schubie. There, each dog had a chore to perform as the children learned to give commands. Tuffie, Tu had to clean up the room by removing a pail and by picking up gum papers with his teeth. Schubie had to remove old shoes, a rag, a piece of wool and a leather strap. Betty Regan believes with Kathryn Braund, that "if schools would teach dog training we would soon learn how to deal with the evils of packs of stray dogs and animal shelters that are bulging at the seams with unwanted pets and streets full of puppies who are manufactured in filth."

Louanne Heath

Did you know that we are smack in the middle of the first of two weeks that have been designated as a special period of support for the Daly City Community for Children's Services?

Mayor Victor Kyriakis has proclaimed May 25 to June 7 as Daly City Days for the new community organization dedicated to serving the children of this area.

The newly funded program is so new that many persons haven't the vaguest idea as to what is brewing in our locale. Hence, everyone who has been with this project from the start is bubbling over with enthusiasm for all community support which the mayor's proclamation is bringing. Mrs. Rhena Gonzalez, and everyone else in the organization, will work eloquently on the goals and the needs of the work which will provide a variety of programs to families with children and will eventually sponsor a day care center for the children of working parents.

With funds always in short supply and the needs always far exceeding the where with all which to make needed purchases, the first thing the group is asking of the community is support for a rummage sale. Mrs. Gonzalez reports that a drive for clean, usable rummage now is under way and any contributions may be left in the fire station located at Edgemonte and Lincoln Avenues in Daly City. Clothing in all sizes, furniture, white elephants, toys, books and jewelry may be left any day between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. in the station. Volunteers will sort and mark the items for the sale which will be on June 7. Proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase office supplies.

For more information contact the Daly City Community for Children's Services (DCCS), any day between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. by telephoning 992-3591.

IT'S CHANGING of the guard time at the Daly City Friends of the Library!

The Friends will meet tomorrow night for an election of officers and to hear John Sullivan, the community services librarian, present "Pot Pourri," the Past Meets the Future. The idea is to showcase the versatility of video tape and to do that Sullivan has collected a number of local residents together to reminisce about the past. Their conversations have been video taped and will be played back as a part of the evening's program.

Mrs. Klaus Tschornig will be the evening's refreshment chairwoman, and the home made cookies will have been contributed by the members of the executive board. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers at the city hall, according to Mrs. Hubert Sandefur, the program chairwoman.

GENIAL AD BELOTZ will be the master of ceremonies when adult scouts from throughout Serra District gather for the annual district dinner on Saturday evening.

The dinner will be held in St. Anne's Church in San Francisco and the program will include the presentation of Awards of District Merit, Woodbridge and Training Awards, according to Mrs. Beekie Burke, the publicity coordinator.

For information about tickets call district headquarters, 647-9509.

THERE IS STILL TIME to purchase tickets to the Fuschia Ball to be held on June 5 in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

Members of Mary's Help Hospital Guild are still selling tickets to the big benefit which is held annually.

Mrs. Virginia Stanghellini and her co-chairwoman, Mrs. Millie Dunow, have been working long hours to help their committee members make this year's ball a smashing success.

Tickets, costing $20 per person, may be obtained from Mrs. Stanghellini. Call her at 755-0357 if you would like more information.

IT HAS BEEN AWARDS time for local Girl Scouts and their leaders and several young ladies received the highest award possible at a tea held recently. Patty Martin and Sandra Freitas of Troop 1620, Corrine Antunez, Karen Dahl, Susan Hall, Susan McDowell and Karen Schwarzbach of Troop 716 all became First Class Scouts during the ceremonies held in Broadmoor Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Carole Ann Scott and Mrs. Mary Ann Dale are the leaders of Troops 1620 and 716.

Adult scouts had their award event on Thursday and several outstanding people were honored. Mrs. Scott, of Troop 1620, was singled out for the highest award possible on the council level and certificates of appreciation were given to Fred Stewart, the Camp Ida Smith site chairman; Mrs. Caroline Futrell, the special events chairwoman; Mrs. Louise Futrell, the Girl Scout South coordinator; and Mrs. Elaine McDowell, the artistic consultant. Senior Girl Scout Cheryl Fignon Browne Revel coordinator, was given a special thank you for her participation in district leadership. Mrs. Margaret Connolly, the association chairwoman, was given an engraved silver plate.

Mrs. Helen Mori was the keynote speaker for the awards program.

MRS. LOIS HILLMAN was named Volunteer of the Year by the members of Friends Outside at their annual meeting held one recent evening.

Mrs. Hillman, who was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, began working with Friends Outside more than three years ago. Currently she is in charge of the Clothes Closet but she fills in and pinch hits in a variety of posts within the organization, according to the executive director, Mrs. Rudy Enberg.

Chamber to Honor Daly City Students

Today at 7 p.m., the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the 17th Annual Awards to Outstanding Students. Night at the Skyliner, Skyline Plaza.

In attendance will be the Honorable Louis J. Papan, Assemblyman; Jean Fassler, supervisor; members of the Daly City Council, and members of the Boards of Trustees of Jefferson Elementary and High School Districts.

The "outstanding students awards" started as a small idea 17 years ago, and has since achieved a high degree of stature in the community.

The students to be honored on this night are hard-working individuals who have applied themselves in achieving high academic standards.

Names of the students are: Jefferson High School - Renee Rolfe, Ramona Rolfe, Tanya Glenn, Howard Leong; Serramonte High School - Peter Zawilski, Kirk Lindstrom, Lynne McNeil, and Peter Tinsley; Westmor High School - Daniel Swanson, Landrya Babin, Nate Pava, and Givnis Heisenbuttel.

Jazz and Ballet Workshop in DC

A dance workshop featuring basic ballet and jazz will be presented June 7 by the Daly City Studio of Dance in the multi-use room of Thomas Edison School, 1267 Southgate Ave., Daly City.

Under the direction of Grete Sorensen, assisted by Valerie Watson, the workshop is designed to acquaint participants with basic techniques and how they may relate to physical fitness as well as good dance training.

Mrs. Sorensen, a former faculty member of the San Francisco Ballet School, welcomes girls from age 11 and women to consider attending the workshop. No previous dance experience is required, and those who have had some training may wish to join in and review familiar exercises and movements.

Hopefully, it will be an opportunity to share the philosophy that beginning ballet can promote good habits and "awaken" lazy muscles.

Mrs. Watson will conduct the jazz session and will offer the participants exercises and movements leading to dance sequences. The strict body placement of ballet provides a strong foundation for jazz technique which subsequently leads to a controlled release and freedom, she said.

Mrs. Sorensen has taught ballet classes in her Daly City studio since 1961 and for the past six years has conducted dance and movement classes in the San Mateo County Special Education program for the mentally retarded students. It is very important to her that concepts of good dance techniques be promoted so that a student's training may be advantageous and pleasurable, not detrimental and tedious. She encourages mothers to join their daughters and share the experience.

Mrs. Watson brings an enthusiasm which motivates her students. Having joined the Daly City studio in 1974, her early training was with the Edgington Studios in Chicago. Recently, Mrs. Watson resumed her studies at Skyline College and College of San Mateo and presently is attending an extended workshop.

The ballet session is scheduled for 10 a.m. to noon, the jazz from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Participants are urged to bring a snack for a lunch break, noon to 1. The workshop is free; for further information contact the Daly City Studio of Dance, 756-6302.

College Dist. Budget Battle

By JOHN HORGAN

The argument over the budget has become a sort of yearly dance macabre in the San Mateo Community College District.

The several sides ardently pull and tug at one another through the spring and early summer before this annual document is approved in August.

This year is no different. Only the rules of the game have changed somewhat.

Because community college districts in California have their revenue-generating power limited by a law dubbed SB 6, the local district can only hope that its enrollment will increase. That is just about the only way it can raise new monies.

And, unlike other school districts in this area, the community college district expects to have an enrollment hike, perhaps as much as 3 per cent in 1975-76.

This addition of an estimated 501 new full-time students, plus an additional factor of some $54 per student for all of the estimated 17,270 full-time students at the three schools, will bring the district about $1.5 million in fresh funds.

A county increase in the value of property has little or no bearing on all this.

It is anticipated that the district's tax rate of just over 72 cents per $100 of assessed valuation will remain stable next year.

However, even with these unusual circumstances, district leaders are not able to relax their guard. Employee groups are clamoring for big raises.

Perhaps the most persistent are the district's teachers who have presented a huge salary and fringe benefit package worth about $6 million.

The battle over the budget has already begun in earnest with the teachers.

For the last several weeks, charges, figures and analyses have been flying around the county like so much shrapnel.

Representatives of the American Federation of Teachers in the district have produced data which indicate that the district ought to literally spend every nickel possible next year.

The district should not protect its considerable reserves, goes their theory, because soon the state will be forced to alter SB 6 and bail out troubled community colleges in the near future.

According to the AFT leadership, which is headed by local president Patrick Manders, an instructor at Canada College in Redwood City, "Why, then, should we protect our reserves? It would be educationally prudent to make changes, abolish inequities and use up the reserves. After we use up the reserves, but before we get desperate, the new state finance law will provide money. In the past, our error has been to spend too little money, not too much."

The AFT reasoning says that the district did not collect the full amount of its general purpose tax from 1971 to 1974 and that this, combined with failure to use the full community services tax and the child-care center tax, has caused the district (and the teachers) to lose a substantial amount of available funds.

The AFT says the district has at least $4.4 million which can be used for expansion next year.

District officials, however, refute such claims and stress that it is their goal to be fair to all sides, including the harassed and burdened taxpayers of this county who foot the district's $28.3 million bills.

Sale of School Nearly Complete

Sale of the San Bruno Park School District North Brea School to the City of San Bruno could be made in early June, San William Jennings told the Board of Trustees Monday night.

Jennings said, "We're coming down to signing of the papers. They should be before you (the board) by the next meeting."

Besides providing a financial shot in the arm to the school district, the sale will give the city a center for senior citizens and youth activities.

At a meeting early this year, the City Council voted to spend its three-year share of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 monies on the community center.

The city's share of the county's annual $2,750,000 will be $114,375 for each of the next three years the funding is in effect. To benefit low and moderate income persons is one of the criteria of the project.

North Brea school buildings are located east of El Camino Real, between Montgomery and San Mateo Avenues. They currently are being used by the district for storage, a maintenance yard and a curricular service center. Only one building is used for limited classroom activities.

The district closed the school after six years ago, with the beginning of construction of Freeway 380. The school is near the freeway and many homes were destroyed when construction began.

11 Per Cent Boost County Budget Is Presented

A recommended 1975-76 San Mateo County budget of $158,983,060, an increase of 11 per cent, was submitted May 20 to the Board of Supervisors by County Manager M. D. Tarshes.

Tarshes said in his budget message that "tentative conclusions" drawn from an analysis of financing resources "indicate that a tax rate increase may not be necessary."

Ten days of public hearings on the proposed budget are scheduled to begin before the board June 9.

Tarshes said the total appropriation increase in the recommended budget is $15,738,193, of that amount representing net county cost increases.

Recommended in the budget is the addition of 69.1 new employee positions, which would bring the total number of county county positions to 4,456.

Called funded positions, they are the average number of permanent jobs expected to be filled, plus the conversion of overtime hours and temporary-position hours to full-time equivalents.

Tarshes said the new positions represent additional personnel necessary to carry out state mandated programs and to continue for 12 months positions authorized but not entirely funded for the current fiscal year.

Of the total recommended budget increase, some $8.2 million will be financed through non-property tax funding from state and federal sources.

Tarshes said the remaining net county cost will be reduced still further by an expected increase in the end-of-year fund balance. Although there will be a need for an increase in total property tax dollars, "it appears possible that the increases in fund balance and countywide assessed valuation will make a tax rate increase unnecessary," he noted.

Tarshes hinted, in fact, that any reductions in county fund requirements decided on by the board of supervisors as a result of the budget hearings "will probably produce a tax rate reduction."

The county's current property tax rate of $1.9175 per $100 of assessed valuation is a drop of 5 cents below the 1973-74 rate. Each cent on the tax rate provides about $240,000 in revenue.

In his analysis of the budget increase, the county manager noted that more than $6.5 million results from salary and related employee benefit increases. $4.25 million for increased costs of supplies and equipment, and another $2.82 million for additional appropriations for existing programs.

He said the increases range from 13 per cent for telephone and electricity to 37 percent for paper and office supplies, to 63 per cent for natural gas.

About $12.8 million of the $15.7 million budget increase was incurred in public protection, health and welfare costs.

The welfare budget increase, up $4.66 million, is primarily the result of inflation and unemployment. Tarshes reported. Inflation has increased the size of aid payments, and unemployment has caused an increase in the number of applicants for aid and medical care, with added costs for determining eligibility.

The health and hospital budget is up by $2.62 million. There are two major reasons for this, the manager noted.

First, the perpetuation of the state policy of imposing, under Medi-Cal legislation, a formula by which the county's share of Medi-Cal costs is tied to the rate of increase in assessed valuation, producing an increase of $1 million in 1975-76 and making the total county share $8 million.

Secondly, the cost of running two parallel health care systems for a temporary period — the Decentralized Health Care Demonstration Project and the centralized program based at Chope Community Hospital.

The cost of nearly $1.4 million for the demonstration project is largely financed by revenue-sharing funds.

Tarshes lists in the budget a number of "pay-in-place" programs involving $3.6 million on which the board will have to make decisions during budget hearings.

One of the items cited is a decision whether the county should contribute $78,479 in county funds to the mental health program where there will be a layoff of 17 employees.

Pay Raises For Aides

District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson has become the highest paid elective official in San Mateo County.

The County Board of Supervisors Tuesday adopted an ordinance granting seven elective county officials 9 per cent salary increases retroactive to Jan. 1. The increases are about the same rate as those approved for appointive officials and employees.

Sorenson's new salary is $41,412 a year, almost $1,100 higher than that of a Superior Court judge.

The salaries approved for other elective officials:

Assessor Jack Estes, $36,048; Controller E. J. McGuire Jr., $35,840; Corner-Public Administrator Paul B. Jensen, $28,560; Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church, $33,132; Sheriff John R. McDonald Jr., $36,048; Tax Collector-Treasurer Ross Conti, $33,132.

MORE TO MAGIC THAN GIRL AND BIRD DISAPPEARING

The focus of attention in most magic acts is the beautiful girl assistant or the fleeting hand movements of the master magician as he makes a bird cage disappear. But when Harry Blackstone Jr. performs, you're more likely to notice the intricate carving or artistic floral motif of the painting on the boxes that hold the beautiful girl after she's been shot out of the cannon. Maybe that's one of his secret weapons to amaze and distract his audience.

Blackstone Jr. inherited more than the rudiments of good showmanship and the hidden secrets of his famous father. He also developed a taste and appreciation for quality apparatus.

His is a class act, whether performing on a small platform with one assistant as he is tonight through Saturday at the San Francisco Playhouse Club or with a company of 40, including singers, dancers and animals (llama, elephant, bear to name a few) in an extravaganza slated for Magic Mountain July 28 through August 2.

"My father bought 280 acres in Colon, Mich., in 1926 where he turned one of the barns into a wood and metal shop. He and his brother, Pete, (the Alsatian family name was Bouton) were a perfect team for 60 years. Dad did the straight act and Pete came on as a clown and would do Commedia dell Arte imitation. My uncle was the technician and did all the building of props, sets and apparatus."

"Some of the equipment they made in the 20s and 30s had beautiful carving and handiwork. We use them as decorator pieces at our home in Redlands."

"We refers to Blackstone and his attractive assistant, ("box jumpers" as the illusion girls are called among magicians because they're always jumping in and out of boxes) Gay who became his wife last October after working with him for five years. She's a former dancer with the San Francisco Ballet Company and one of Dean Martin's "Goldiggers." Between them they have four children, two houses and $60,000 worth of new apparatus.

"Our apparatus is made of California oak and rosewood. Much of it is designed and constructed by specialty artists. There are only three people in America and one in Europe who design and hand-craft such high quality pieces. We use a clear lucite and brushed aluminum tray that is a modern and clean version of the old fashioned magicians trick table with the black drapery."

Their big show requires a 40-foot van to transport their apparatus and Gay's 11 costumes which are designed by such fashion notables as Oscar de

Aviation Week in San Bruno

A community aviation luncheon, tours of airport neighbors and a display of jumbo jets are features of the Aviation Appreciation Week through Saturday in San Bruno.

Sponsored by the San Bruno Chamber of Commerce, the ninth annual event is part of a community affairs program designed to recognize the importance of San Francisco International Airport and its airlines, to the economy of surrounding cities.

"Aviation Luncheon" is scheduled for Thursday at Russo's Distillery restaurant, with Dr. Mark Ardema of NASA as keynote speaker.

Tours of United Airlines' maintenance base are offered daily at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., with reservations made through the Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday, a display of aircraft tours of the SFO Control Tower, and of standing displays of aircraft ranging from a Coast Guard helicopter to a Boeing 747 and a Lockheed L-1011. Details of the tour can be learned from the Chamber of Commerce, said spokesman Larry Mobley.

la Renta, Rav Agayhan, and Bob Mackie. Blackstone's black sequin trimmed tuxedo is by Michael Travis, award winning Emmy designer of TV's "Laugh In" and the Tony Orlando show. They're as dazzling in their presentation of themselves as in the feats of magic they perform.

How does the son differ from the father who was one of the greatest magicians of his time?

"I'm an actor playing the part of a magician. I claim at various times to be an illusionist, a pickpocket, mentalist. Magic is only one phase of my career."

After his parents were divorced and he remained with his father, traveling around the country from the age of seven, young Blackstone Jr. learned to handle the front of the house as well as the back of the stage. He knew all about ticket sales, publicity, booking and checking his father's equipment by the time he enrolled in USC. He then went to the University of Texas on a fellowship from the Library of Congress to research several magic collections bequeathed to the school.

After cataloging 38,000 titles of manuscripts, books, apparatus and posters from the collections of George "Bringing Up Father" McManus and Norman Bel Geddes, he worked as a producer, actor and General manager of "Hair" (including the production that toured to San Francisco) and became proficient at magic.

"You'd be surprised at how many good amateur magicians there are. Chester Morris was a good sleight-of-hand artist. Paul Newman and Robert Lansing are interested in close-up magic. Tony Curtis portrayed Houdini whose real name was Eric Weiss and took his stage name form a minor French government official of the 1820s, Jean Robert Houdini, who performed stage magic.

"I love to lecture and work as an advisor as I'm doing with Jack Cassidy who is playing a magician on TV's "Columbo." I created an act for him. I helped Ben Vereen who starred in "Pippin" to work up a night club act.

"The most important element in being a good magician, or a good performer of any kind is communication with an audience. You exchange material for laughter, amazement for trick. It's action and response. So many of the people in my profession are sellers of apparatus. They become so involved with technical things, they could get better response from a mirror."

Le Paeini Young Stribling Pushed for Hall

We don't really know what today's subject has to do with current events, although the circus aspect of his life could be paralleled with the circus aspects of the careers of George Foreman and Muhammad Ali, we suppose, but that would be reaching. Actually, it's just that we've been meaning to write a column on Young Stribling, former light heavyweight and heavyweights contender, for almost a year now since we learned that Jimmy Jones, former sports editor of the Macon Telegraph (and others) was trying to get Stribling inducted into the boxing Hall of Fame.

Never having seen Stribling in action (he died in a motorcycle accident the year before we were born), we of course don't know first hand what his qualifications are, but off his record he should be in there some place. And if his ring record isn't good enough for the hall, his "image" and his "life style" should at least qualify him for a moving picture bio or a television series.

Stribling, who died when he was only 29 while rushing out to buy roses for his wife, who had just delivered his third child, began his professional career at age 16 and in those 12-plus years engaged in a phenomenal 286 bouts (not counting some barnstorming exhibitions) and knocked out 126 opponents, an all-time record that stood until Archie Moore broke it.

Stribling, who ended up with a best fighting weight of 172 (on a 5-11 1/2 frame), fought in every division from bantam on up through the heavyweight division, mainly because Pa and Ma Stribling were circus performers and as part of their act had him boxing (along with his brother Babe) when he was almost literally a toddler.

There is some controversy over exactly how good Stribling really was. Some say he was a scientific boxer, quick, clever, and hard hitting. Gentleman Jim Corbett had always thought he could have beaten Gene Tunney, who retired before Stribling got a crack at him. Others say he was a painful fighter to watch because of his incessant clinching tactics. They also note that most of his knockout victims were obscure third raters and claim that some of his victories were against the family chauffeur, who would drive the Striblings by day and get knocked out softly by Willie (that was "Young" Stribling's first name) by night.

FIGHTING THAT OFTEN and knocking out that many — even if they were china-chinned set-ups (Foreman couldn't knock out all of his pushovers in two infamous five-stud card he fought on national television) — still took some kind of man; and the fact remains that later in his career Stribling did fight and even beat some good men. Among his 14 draws were Berlenbach, he lost only two of them on fouls (one to Primo Carnera) and just one by KO, and even then he was still standing when he was stopped. And they weren't all exactly bums who beat him. Among them were Berlenbach (for the light heavy title) Tommy Loughran, Jack Sharkey and Jack Little. The only man to beat him out was away for the count was Max Schmeling, whom he fought for the heavyweight title in 1931. At that, the bout was stopped with only a few seconds remaining in the 15th and last round.

Among his victories were such competent fighters as Loughran, Slater (twice), Johnny Risko (twice), and Slapiss Maxie Rosenbloom (twice) who became light heavy champ.

Stribling was well built, well conditioned, handsome, didn't drink, swear or chase skirts. He raced motorcycles, sported boats and flew airplanes, and died a tragic early death while racing to do something romantic for his wife. If his incredible ring record shouldn't do it for the boxing Hall of Fame, then his dashing, tragic, All American image should do it for a film producer.

AS WE WRITE THIS, the Warriors have just beaten Washington in the first game of the championship playoffs. One of their sparks, as you know, was Derrek Dickey. And that is what's wrong with writing a weekly column. Had we been able to write this sooner, one of the comments we were going to make was that he had a chance of winning. At Arlington we have to use both Dickey and Bill Bridges more often — and that they would have to play well — in order to combat Cap masclenen Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld. We couldn't have written this last week, because at that column deadline the Warriors still hadn't beaten the Bulls. So writing a weekly column sometimes doesn't give one a chance to look good. Of course, it occasionally keeps one from looking like an ass, too, because being late sometimes keeps you truly from making a prediction which would have flopped.

Now that the Warriors are one-up and have cost the Caps a home court advantage — and have proven to themselves that they can beat the "best" team in the NBA under the most adverse of conditions (i.e. coming from way behind on the enemy court with their two best shooters — Glick Barry and Keith Wilkes — having bad scoring games), we believe they can beat the Caps. Especially if Mike Riordan, who generally does such a good defensive job on Barry, continues to suffer leg problems. But we still think it will probably take seven games, which we would have thought even if the Warriors hadn't won game one. Except that our feelings on the eventual winner had been reversed.

Two weeks ago, we wouldn't have thought the Warriors had much of a chance to get into even the sixth game with Washington. But we think they've discovered the secret to success. Many times during the regular season, the Warriors piled up big leads and blew them. They lacked the killer instinct, it seemed. Perhaps they still do, but they've now established a pattern which makes killer instinct or lack of an academic question. Now they let the OTHER team get big leads. Obviously, they play better from behind, like Silky Sullivan.

WHATEVER YOU DO, baseball fans, don't panic over the current plight of the young Giants. They will do OK. When the season began, we felt they had the best team in the western division aside from the Dodgers and Reds. Now, the way Cincinnati pitching is going, we think that the Giants might be able to sneak by even them. (The Dodgers are another story. When they piled up a winning streak with half their regulars and two of their best pitchers in the hospital, they showed us something.)

Softball for Women in DC

The Daly City Recreation Division is sponsoring a Women's Softball League for women 18 years of age and older. The league will play all games on the Westlake Park beginning June 22.

Cost of the league will be $45 which covers the cost of umpires, game balls and trophies.

Complete rosters must be in the Westlake Community Center, 145 Lake Merced Blvd. Daly City, CA 94015, no later than 5 p.m. June 11.

Serramonte Wins CCS Track

When Serramonte High track coach Mike Rueda used to host the Central Coast Section's Region I meet, it pained him to pass out the trophies. Serramonte didn't get any.

"I know I was just a custodian," he said. "But it hurt."

But Friday Serramonte got that trophy, scoring a crushing team win in the Region I meet at College of San Mateo. It was the first time, noted Rueda, that a North Peninsula League team had won the meet.

It won't be the biggest trophy in our trophy case — actually, we don't have that many trophies at all — but it represents something very important," he said.

Serramonte scored 97 points to 62 1/2 for Mills and 61 for San Mateo.

Some marks in the meet were unaccountably less impressive than expected, but five meet records were set, and there were several post-race quickening finishes.

The most impressive mark was recorded by San Mateo High's mile relay team, a quartet of youths prematurely written off after they had failed in a season of effort to match their exploits of 1974.

Gary Davis and Bob Mardis opened quickly. Andy Gustavson, who had just recovered from an injury in time to run Friday, maintained a scant lead. Anchor man Bob Foulke had to hold off Serramonte's Ron Kennedy, who had earlier set a meet record 48.8 in a thrilling 440.

Kennedy ran the first 220 easily, as is his style, then turned on the juice — but despite a 49.1 leg couldn't catch Foulke, who's also a top quarter miler. "I ran scared," said Foulke, who broke the tape in 3:19.9, a stunning time.

Serramonte did open the track events (where the Regents score most of their points) with a meet record 42.8 in the quarter relay. Kennedy and Tony Hicks finished one-two in the high hurdles.

Hicks blazed to a season best 37.6 in the 300 low hurdles. Teammate Alvin Dines pulled off something of a surprise, winning both the 100 and 220 in rather slow times.

Riordan's Tom Paulin led a slow opening 220 in the quarter mile. St. Ignace's Paul McCarthy overhauled Paulin on the backstretch. Foulke wasn't far behind. McCarthy led going into the final 110, but Kennedy had really started moving — he caught McCarthy in the last 20 yards and won, both clocked 48.8, with Foulke running 49.4 and Paulin 49.5.

"I'm just getting over a cold," said Kennedy. "I was in the hospital on Wednesday and Thursday and was home resting for this one today. I didn't save anything because I didn't want people to think I was making excuses. But I had trouble breathing."

"They pushed me hard. McCarthy's good, but I wasn't going to let him beat me. I let him get away, but I knew that my last 220 was stronger than his."

Hillsdale's Bob Barnett and San Mateo's Craig Corey, who have spent a lot of time running on each other's shoulders in distance races this season, came up with another gutsy duel Friday.

They were alone in the two-mile lead all the way. Barnett led the first six laps, then Corey went in front. In the Mid-Peninsula League finals Corey had done this and just pulled away. This time Barnett nearly out-kicked the junior Corey won, but both stopped watching in 9:28.3.

Said Barnett, "My strategy is to run into the ground and it works when I'm feeling good. I wasn't 100 per cent today."

but a lot better than I've felt in the past. I thought I could catch him (Corey) in this race. I've caught him before, but he's very strong."

"I didn't think he'd come up at the end like that," said Corey. "I wasn't sure how it would come out because I'm just getting over a cold. I plan to run hard in the section and hope to run well in the State meet — I hope Rob can go with me."

Mills' Bob Dillard set a meet record with a sterling 6-8 high jump. He was also the leading Region I pole vaulter going into the meet, but barely qualified for the CCS with a fifth-place, 13-0 vault. The winner, in a mild upset, was Aragon's Kevin Stevenson, who vaulted 14-0 for the second straight week.

Serra High's Gerry Harnett upset Oceana's Bill LaForge in the mile, clocking 4:23.0. LaForge, who ran 4:18.9 earlier in the year, may have been saving something. But Harnett won by more than two seconds.

I got bowed in on the second lap and that didn't help," said Harnett. "But I like to pass on the fourth and it worked out just like that."

Cato Finds Golf Groove

By DICK DRAPER

When the traffic on Norfolk Street eases, you might hear a distinctive sound from the Matthew Cato garage. Crack . . . whup!

For hours it continues, as Mike Cato and brother Mark perfect their golf swings, hearing the explosive crack of wood against high-tension plastic and the satisfying "whup" as the ball slams into a canvas backdrop, part of their homemade driving range, an all-weather mini-course.

Crack . . . whup! It borders on madness. It is compulsion, mania, and they continue their seemingly interminable swishing on area courses, trying to find that elusive mechanical and psychological groove.

For 19-year-old Mike, the repetition, the if-I-have-a-spare-minute-I'll-go-to-the-golf-course habitude is essential.

Without it, his timing would go counter-clockwise, his feel for the game would be dulled. When you're a hot-shot junior college golfer, one of Northern California's better amateurs and eyeing an eventual professional career, practice is a must.

"I've learned that I've got to work at it," explained Cato, the latest in a string of top-flight golfers produced at College of San Mateo under veteran coach Ray Baisley. "I didn't play as well as I wanted to early in the season because I let my game go."

"But I felt it was important to do well in Golden Gate Conference, Northern California and state tournaments. I had to get to work."

It paid off. Cato was medalist in the recent Sierra JC tournament in Sacramento, out-smarting 50-mph winds and a strong field. He also won the West Valley tournament, tied for second in the GGC event, and lost the NorCal JC tourney in a playoff.

Last week, the CSM freshman finished sixth in the state JC tournament at Camarillo.

The crack-whupping helped, but it was perhaps Cato's mental growth that keyed it all.

"The last few tournaments I found myself staying steady, and not blowing up as I used to do when I was younger. I haven't matured nearly as much as I want to, but over the last two months I have noticed a change."

Cato is a gifted wood-stroke artist. The ball rockets off his driver, long and straight, consistently in the 270-yards-and-over range.

"It is my biggest asset," says Hillsdale High grad Cato. "I usually keep the ball in play during the conference, NorCal and state tournaments. I didn't have one penalty stroke off the tee — and that covered 108 holes."

In addition to maturity, Cato's confidence under pressure is unshakable. At the state tourney, he needed birdies on the final two holes or, as he put it, "go home empty-handed." He didn't fold. He got the birdies.

"I try to restrain myself," explained Cato of his slow, deliberate style. "I have to keep everything flowing smoothly. Except maybe on the tee — I can get charged up and really let it go."

CSM golf coach Ray Baisley, whose teams have won conference titles 19 times in 26 years and six state championships, has praised for his No. 1 player.

"Off the tee, he can hit it as long as the pros do, and he does keep cool when things aren't going well. He has good mental control over his game and can really concentrate."

"There's no question," continued Baisley, "that if he keeps on improving he has a chance to make it in the pros. He just thrives on the pressure and loves to practice. He pays the price."

Three Bulldogs have captured state JC titles: Tom Brigham in 1962, Lotz in 1963 and Mike Ray in 1967.

NPL Baseball Colts Win Playoff

By JERRY LITTELL

It's been a year of frustration for El Camino High pitcher Herman Segelke.

The hulking junior right-hander, who decided early last year to forego all other sports and concentrate on baseball, may have been feeling literally "out in left field" as his teammates drove toward the North Peninsula League baseball championship.

Regarded as a top prospect on the mound, Segelke developed tendinitis in his pitching arm and sat out most of the year.

His ailment, however, was directly responsible for the development of junior pitcher Bob Humphrey. Those two clicked perfectly Friday as El Camino won the NPL Shaughnessy playoff with a 2-0 victory over visiting Half Moon Bay.

Camino now advances to the Central Coast Section Region I finals next Saturday at Washington Park against the winner of Thursday's Capuchino-Riordan game.

Segelke got a measure of accomplishment Friday when his fifth-inning pinch-hit single drove in the Colts' only two runs.

And Humphrey, pitching his fourth game in 12 days, recorded his third straight shutout, a four-hit masterpiece, in which he struck out 11 and walked none.

Camino struck quickly. Tim McGraw lashed a single to center, but was forced at second on Bob Ciancio's attempted sacrifice. Humphrey drilled a double off the short center field fence to put runners at second and third.

Segelke batted for catcher Gary Ottonello, watched three curly balls put him in the hole 1-2, and bounced a two-hop single up the middle on the fourth decade.

Segelke, who might have seen mound duty Friday pitched batting practice Wednesday, came up with a sore elbow Thursday and may not hurt at all in the CCS playoffs.

THANKS BADGE. Girl Scout's highest award available to an adult Girl Scout, was recently awarded to Mrs. Carole Ann Scott at the annual recognition luncheon given by the Daly City Girl Scout Association.

Mrs. Scott was cited as both a Junior and a Cadette unit leader, former training coordinator, backpack unit leader, day camp director, Cadette consultant — liaison and outdoor trainer.

She is presently the leader of Cadette Troop 1820 and active in other local youth organizations. Her Thanks Badge was proposed by the local awards committee and authorized on behalf of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. by the San Francisco Bay Council.

A Thanks Badge recipient must have been a registered Girl Scout adult serving the program for at least five years to be considered. Mrs. Scott was honored for being the type of person "dedicated to improving the world around her."

Certificates of Appreciation were presented to four local adult Scouts by members of the Daly City Association.

Camp Ida Smith volunteer site chairman Fred Stewart of Daly City was cited for his dedication to Scouting. Mrs. Louise Courpet for her organization of Girl Scout Sunday. Caroline Futrell for acting as special events chairman, and Elaine McDowell as a volunteer artist.

Cadette consultant Carole Ann Scott provided the introduction as sixth grade Junior Scouts and their mothers were special guests. The recipients included:

Patty Martin who fulfilled the challenges of "knowing myself," emergency preparedness, active citizenship and social dependability, and will attend Mercy High in the fall.

Posy Parade Ready to Roll

San Bruno's largest, annual city event, the Posy Parade, will be June 1, sponsored by the Optimist Club.

This is the 35th year the parade has been held in San Bruno.

This year's theme is "Spirit of '75," and all children 14 years of age and under are invited to participate in the parade.

The parade will form on the streets adjacent to Kains Avenue, between El Camino Real and San Mateo Avenue. All entries must be in line by 12:30 p.m. for the judging.

Prizes for the winning entries will be awarded at San Bruno City Park, immediately following the parade. Each parade participant will receive tickets for a free hot dog, soft drink and an ice cream at the park.

Family Planning Nurse on Coast

Pacific's first family planning nurse practitioner is on the job, and needs volunteers to begin a new dimension in service to the community by Planned Parenthood Association San Mateo County.

Sallyann Borrás, R.N., who came to Pacifica as a newly graduated nurse and "child bride" 25 years ago, has returned after a six-week, 16-hours per day stint at the University of California Medical Center's program for Continuing Education for Nurses.

As a result, she now certification as a Nurse Practitioner, which means that she can now examine patients herself, thus saving time for both patients and physicians.

This also means that hours patients can be examined at the Pacifica clinic at 75 Aura Vista, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, instead of only during two clinics weekly as in the past.

This all means, Mrs. Borrás said, that she needs help. She needs volunteers, 18 years and older, to work at the clinic and help in processing the additional patients that will now be using the facility on a daily basis.

Those interested in volunteering can call Mrs. Borrás, at 352-2440, or Mrs. Lucille R. Tauscher, administrative assistant in charge of the Volunteer Recruitment Program, at the San Mateo main office, 574-2822.

To qualify for the course as Nurse Practitioner, Mrs. Borrás, whose husband, Miguel, is a superintendent of mails in San Francisco, was required to have a registered nurse's degree, working in the field of family planning, and sponsored by an agency or doctor that would utilize her skills upon completion of the course.

She qualified on all of these counts, being director of the Pacifica clinic of Planned Parenthood Association San Mateo County, a graduate of St. Francis Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in San Francisco, and nursing service at St. Francis, at Vallejo General, and at Kaiser Permanente in San Francisco.

She came to the Pacifica clinic when it first opened as a volunteer herself, chiefly because she was "horrified by the increasing epidemic of pregnancy she saw among the young girls of the area, how little they knew, and how much help they needed."

In those days, she recalls, "We got the key from the newspaper office downstairs and opened the office."

She's Returning Birth to the Basics

By MICHELLE CARTER
Post Staff Writer

"The woman who has a natural birth in America today usually has it in a taxi."

How's that for a blow to the natural childbirth advocates who believe a natural birth can occur as easily in a hospital as at home or in a specially designed maternity center?

The speaker is Suzanne Arms, a Mill Valley woman who has authored a book called "Immaculate Deception" (San Francisco Book Co., $6.95) that puts the lie to the "naturalness" of a birth that is subject to the number of interferences demanded in hospitals today.

Suzanne Arms

She speaks from experience having delivered her own daughter, Molly, four and a half years ago in a hospital with "the normal number of interferences in the birth process."

According to her, the laboring mother is routinely fed glucose through an intravenous hook-up and has a fetal monitor strapped around her swollen abdomen—even when there is no reason to suspect a birth complication.

Ms. Arms also maintains that drugs are commonly administered, often without the woman's knowledge, to speed up or slow down the birthing process "sometimes just to accommodate the schedule of the doctor or the delivery room."

Even a woman who steadfastly refuses any drugs during labor still will probably get local anesthesia so that a routine episiotomy can be performed. (The episiotomy is the incision made in the vaginal opening so that an emerging head or the baby does not tear the tissue.)

But Ms. Arms makes a strong case for the contention that an episiotomy is not all that necessary in most normal births. She says that if a woman were allowed to deliver in a more upright position, if she weren't strapped in the stirrups on the delivery table and if the doctor were willing to take the time and the patience to massage the perineal area with oil and stretch the tissue gently, there would be no tearing and no need for the incision.

She bases her opinions on the success midwives have had with home deliveries in which an episiotomy is a rare occurrence and tearing is seldom a problem, she says.

Dedicated to "getting the normal birth out of the hospitals," Ms. Arms believes hospital staffs are "trained to treat problems, but a normal birth is not a problem."

The hospital routine for handling the birthing mother, she says, is "an overwhelming assault to the natural process." She points to the ever-increasing number of Caesarian sections performed each year (up to 50 per cent of all births at one New York hospital) and an indication that doctors look upon "the mother's body as an unsafe place for the baby to be."

She contends that many of the complications that do arise in hospital births are caused by the interferences done at the hospital. "When you make one interference, then you have to make another to compensate. When you administer one drug to slow labor down, you have to give another to speed it up."

She cites statistics that indicate that 80 per cent of all hospital births today are either stimulated or induced with drugs, and that, she maintains, is dangerous.

"When you tamper with the rhythm of birth, you are really tampering with life. Doctors continue to say that this drug or that one will not harm the baby, but they do not know."

But what about the woman who is begging to be "put out" of the pain of labor?

"When a woman is screaming, she doesn't need to be knocked out. She needs support, she needs someone to tell her she's doing fine, someone to breathe with her through the contractions."

No woman should ever give birth without a personal attendant with her at all times whether that attendant is a husband or a mid-wife or a friend."

She also reminds each woman in labor, "You can't depend on someone else to deliver your baby. It is your responsibility whether you want to take it or not."

Women can have the type of birth they would like in hospitals, she says, if they are ready to suffer with medication when really needs is patience and support.

The normal birth should be the province of the mid-wife. Ms. Arms maintains, a woman who attends the birth women to put the doctor on the defensive with the question "How can you want to damage my baby with those procedures?"

The doctors are not personally to blame, she says, but they have been trained to respond to suffering with medication when really needs is patience and support.

The normal birth should be the province of the mid-wife. Ms. Arms maintains, a woman who attends the birth throughout labor in an environment of comfort and warmth for the mother. That doesn't have to be the home, though.

Ms. Arms and a group of midwives and obstetricians in northern Marin County are working to establish a maternity center where mothers can be delivered in homes surrounded in the company of other children, husbands and friends, if the mother desires.

In the maternity center, the midwife would handle the normal births and the child would remain with its mother to establish what Ms. Arms believes to be vitally important early bonds.

Really, "the maternity center is a throwback to the community home that used to exist in this country for birthing mothers," she says.

With the maternity center as with her basic approach to childbirth, Suzanne Arms is convinced that for the way things used to be for the normal birth is the way they should continue to be today.

Regular meetings will resume again in August, but the chapter still will participate in activities of various kinds during the summer, as plans were made to attend the June 1 Brunch in Santa Rosa, board meetings to prepare for the new year, and remembrances to Carol Jo Smith, the chapter's adopted Sister, who celebrated her eighteenth birthday May 18 at Bruners in Serranito.

Dave Woodward was on hand to present Carol Jo with a portable T.V. set, as a gift from Bruners, to help her pass the time more comfortably in the hospital, while on the Kidney Dialysis machine.

Xi Lambda greatly appreciated the generosity, as did Carol Jo and her family. Xi Lambda presented Carol with a $200 merchandise order, and their sister chapters, which were also present at the party, presented her with other gifts.

Monday night's meeting was highlighted by the reception of a new Sister into Xi Lambda Sigma. Mrs. Richard Thomas of San Bruno
